Federal Farm Board to Market Wheat in Brazil

TO BARTER WHEAT FOR COFFEE IN AGREEMENT MADE

1,275,000 SACKS OF COFFEE EXCHANGED FOR 25,000,000 BUSHELS OF WHEAT

CHAIRMAN JAMES C. STONE INDICATES ARRANGEMENT WILL BE CARRIED OUT

Washington, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Reverting to the pioneer method of bartering one commodity for another, the federal farm board today seemed to have found a market in Brazil for part of its surplus wheat.

The Brazilian government in Rio De Janeiro announced officially that it had delivered to the United States government an agreement providing for exchange of 1,275,000 sacks of coffee for 25,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Chairman James C. Stone of the farm board indicated the barter arrangement would be carried out. He withheld a formal announcement for a few hours until he could consult with other members of the board.

At the same time the farm board was prepared to negotiate with the Chinese government for sale of 15,000,000 bushels of wheat on long term credit. This would be used to feed famine and flood victims.

The Brazilian and Chinese sales would reduce the board's wheat stocks by 40,000,000 bushels. It now holds a total of about 275,000,000 bushels.

Delivery of 25,000,000 bushels of wheat to Brazil in exchange for coffee would represent the largest export of wheat ever made to Brazil by this country. Brazil recently had imported very little unmilled American wheat and only about 800,000 barrels of floor annually, the equivalent of 3,860,000 bushels of wheat.

The bartering arrangement with Brazil had been considered by the farm board for a year. Several difficulties were encountered. Fear of antagonizing American coffee traders was one factor. Another was that the board had no facilities of its own for distributing the coffee.

The amount of coffee to be exchanged—1,275,000 sacks according to the Rio De Janeiro announcement—represents about one-eighth of this country's annual imports most of which comes from Brazil.

In the Chinese negotiations, Chairman Stone of the farm board was awaiting a formal offer from the Chinese government. China's first overtures to the board merely asked whether the board would sell wheat on a long-time credit basis. Stone replied the board would be willing to do so.

It was believed likely the Chinese nationalist government would retain a banker or attorney here to conduct detailed negotiations with the board.

Officials at the Brazilian embassy would not discuss the contracts, alleging that they did not know officially of them.

The United States has shipped practically no wheat to Brazil in recent years but exports of wheat flour have ranged from 500,000 to 850,000 barrels annually, valued at from $3,000,000 to $6,000,000. The flour goes chiefly to north Brazilian ports.

Brazil's wheat imports come chiefly from Uruguay and Argentina, and the milling for south Brazil is done largely at Sao Paulo.

The economic importance of farm board deliveries of wheat to Brazil, according to trade experts here has depended largely upon whether this wheat after milling displaces the ordinary United States flour exportations or on the other hand displaces Brazilian imports from other countries.

Washington, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—A contract was signed today for exchange of surplus stabilization for Brazillian coffee.

The contract was signed at the Brazilian embassy by Ambassador Lima E. Silva and George Milnor, president of the grain stabilization corporation.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Sending bulk wheat abroad will defeat partially the government's efforts to relieve unemployment, leading millers of the northwest said today.

Extreme disappointment was expressed at the action of the federal farm board in closing a trade with Brazil whereby 25,000,000 bushels of wheat will be exchanged for 1,275,000 sacks of coffee.

"The government is loaning money to ship wheat to Brazil and China and thereby nullifying efforts to aid employment here," a leading miller said. "For very little more money, the wheat could be turned into flour and give employment to men in milling and dependent industries."

"It has been five years since any considerable exports of wheat have been shipped to South America. A steady trade of some 850,000 barrels of flour will be affected by the deal and the employment of thousands cut."

Employment in more than a score of industries would be aided if the wheat were manufactured before being shipped, it was pointed out.

Another miller said the milling of the wheat in this country would have its advantages to the farmers. Large supplies of offal from the milling would afford the farmers cheap feed for livestock. Drought and grasshoppers in the northwest have made the need of low price feed imperative, it was said.

"Milling the flour here would aid employment in dozens of lines," a third miller said. "If flour were shipped to China, for instance, some 4,000,000 cotton bags would be used, but now the shipment will be in bulk. Coal, electrical equipment, paper and scores of other industries would be aided.

GRAVE FINANCIAL CRISIS IN BRITAIN

BEST MINDS ARE MARSHALLED TO SOLVE PROBLEM

CABINET ALMOST IN CONTINUOUS SESSION FOR SEVERAL DAYS

SEEK TO FIND $600,000,000 ADDITIONAL REVENUE TO RUN COUNTRY

By KEITH JONES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Great Britain, confronted with the gravest financial crisis in her modern history, marshalled her best minds tonight in an effort to solve the problem.

The cabinet, which has been in almost continuous session for several days, was summoned hastily to a special session tonight.

The meetng was called after hours of consulation between leading members of the government and representatives of the conservative and liberal parties.

The conservatives left No. 10 Downing street, the prime minister's residence, at 7:35 p. m. and the liberals ten minutes later. The cabinet was then summoned. It was understood the representatives of the two opposition parties would return to Downing street to receive the cabinet's reply to their objections to the government's redrafted proposals for national economy.

The burden of the grave negotiations, involving the seemingly hopeless task of finding $600,000,000 additional revenue to run the country next year, was mainly being borne by Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald and Phillip Snowden, the crippled chancellor of the exchequer, with the financial wizardry of the latter strained to the utmost.

Several members of the ministry returned to Downing street while the conservatives and liberals were still there.

With the socialist government seemingly baffled by the problem, no party was eager to take the entire responsibility of meeting the crisis. There was unofficial talk of a possible coalition government, such as handled the country's affars in the difficult days of the war. Such a government would include the leading men of the socialists, conservatives and liberals.

An extraordinary meeting of the cabinet was set for 9:30 a. m. tomorrow ,indicating that the attitude of the conservatives and liberals had precipitated a drastic change in the government's plans.

Contrary to earlier expectations no authorative statement was considered likely to be issued tonight.

LINDBERGH PLANE TOWED 20 MILES IN CHOPPY SEAS

NOW RESTS ON SAND BEACH OF MUROTON BAY,, WINGS CLIPPED

COL. LINDBERGH TRYING TO LOCATE MOTOR TROUBLE OF PLANE

By MILES W. VAUGHN

Tokio, Aug. 21.—The Lockheed seaplane which carried Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh 6,000 miles on a vacation jaunt to Japan rested on the sand beach of Muroton Bay, in the tiny Kuriles, its wings clipped.

Towed 20 miles through cold, choppy seas by the Japanese steamer Shinshiru Maru, the plane reached the beach early this evening and was immediately towed ashore and onto the sand by sailors from the boat.

The Lindberghs believed the trouble in their engine, probably in the carburetor, could be repaired more easily ashore, and they hoped to continue their interrupted flight to Tokio on Saturday.

The protected bay was calm and the sky cloudless, as the big black monoplane bobbed along in tow of the steamer. The calm water was in contrast with the treacherous seas outside, which buffeted the ship since it was forced down near Ketoi Islet, one of the lonely chain of the Kuriles.

From Muroton Bay the Lindberghs will go on to Nemuro, and thence to Tokio, as they had planned when they were forced down Wednesday after leaving Siberia.

Although nothing was said about it, or even hinted, to the famous pair, the Japanese aboard the steamer suspected the feminine half of "We" was a bit homesick. They noticed that on one of her numerous visits to the boat as it stood by the monoplane at Ketoi, she picked up a Japanese magazine and glanced idly through it. Finally she came to a picture of a mother and child, and for many minutes gazed alternately at the picture and over the grey seas, as though she might be thinking of her own tiny son, safe in his nursery in the far-off home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Morrow.

Lindbergh at 4 A. M. (1 P. M. Thursday CST.) sent a radio through the Shinshiru Maru, which said:

"Anne (Mrs. Lindbergh) in good health, and spent the time comfortably. I am trying to locate the trouble."

He referred to trouble with the motor of their plane.

The Japanese government decided today to rush an aviation engineer and two mechanics to Nemuro to help Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh on their arrival there.

The Lindberghs, however, must spend another night in the desolate mid-Kurile islands, some 400 miles north of Nemuro, where they were forced down in fog and rough weather Wednesday.

SEARCH FOR WOMAN THOUGHT TO BE MENTALLY DERANGED

Aberdeen, S. D., Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—Search for Mrs. Charles Smith believed mentally deranged who disappeared Tuesday, today had spread to all parts of the northwest, the sheriffs office said.

A theory that Mrs. Smith had been kidnapped by a transient named Thomas Prutt, who had been seen around the Smith home a week ago led to the issuing ow warrants for his arrest.

Police of Minnesota and North Dakota were asked to be on the lookout for the pair and particularly for Mrs. Smith. Members of the family said she had ben given several mental examinations.

MYSTERY IN SUDDEN DEATH OF YOUNG WOMAN

BODY OF RED-HAIRED WOMAN FOUND ON ROAD WEST OF KENOHA

PATHOLOGIST'S EXAMINATION REVEALS SHE HAD BEEN BEATEN AND STRANGLED

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—Mystery today surrounded the identity of a red-haired woman, about 35 years old, whose bruised and beaten body was found on the Silver Lake road, about 22 miles west of Kenosha.

An autopsy performed by Dr. Edward L. Miloslavich, pathologist of Marquette university, Milwaukee, revealed that the woman, attired in wine-colored dress but wearing neither shoes nor stockings, had been beaten severely and strangled. Lack of bruises on the outside of the throat gave rise to a theory that she had been strangled by a gas.

Police discounted a theory that she was the wife of Harry Morris, alias J. A. Camden, Chicago bootlegger, who was found murdered near Red Wing, Minn., last Monday.

One of the most promising clues to the woman's identity came from Chicago, where Philip Russo, a wealthy merchant, told police he believed the woman might have been his wife, who disappeared July 30, 1930.

Russo's wife, Jean, was 38 years old and was well known as a radio singer. Russo said he had never found any clue as to what became of her. He said her description tallied almost exactly with that of the dead woman except that his wife's eyes were brown, while those of the slain woman were said to be blue-gray.

The body was found by Mr. and Mrs. August Bundesguard, and Mrs. Lillie Mitchell, of Silver Lake, who had started on an early morning fishing excursion. They notified Dr. B. A. Mitchel, who said the woman had been dead about six hours.

Dr. Miloslavich said they were signs of a terriffic struggle before the woman was murdered. He said she had been attacked.

Anoka ,Minn., Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Sheriff O. F. Olson and a posse of irate townspeople and farmers today set out for Lake Netta, 16 miles north of here seeking two men alleged to have attacked a 14 year old girl.

The men were reported to have been seen at the lake, driving an old Ford automobile with a cracked windshield. The sheriff said that another girl had reported an attempt to force her into an automobile.

The 14 year old girl came home last night and sobbed out a story of how the men seized her as she went to the mailbox, threw her into their automobile, drove to a nearby woods and attacked her, according to her story.

As Army Tried to Sink Ship

These three pictures tell the story of the bombing of the transport Mt. Shasta by ten U. S. Army bombing planes from Langley Field Va. The Army fliers, although they scored two direct hits, failed to sink the craft while the Navy is reported to have snickered and the Coast Guard actually sank the transport by gunfire. Top picture shows Bomber Charles F. Clemens at the sights ready to drop 100 pounds of destruction on the Mt. Shasta. Center picture shows a bomb as it fell toward its mark far below. Bottom photo depicts the same bomb falling wide of its mark. The aerial attack took place off the Virginia Capes.

SIR HUBERT TO MOVE TOWARD POLE TONIGHT

NAUTILUS IS EQUIPPED WITH ICE-BREAKING PARAPHERNALIA

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—The submarine Nautilus arrived at the ice barrier on its perilous voyage into polar waters, the newspaper Berlinske Tidende said today.

The dispatch said that Sir Hubert Wilkins, in command, had decided to try moving onward toward the North Pole tonight, on the most dangerous phase of the daring cruise.

The Nautilus was equipped with special ice-breaking paraphernalia which Wilkins said made under-ice cruising safe. In case of emergency, he believed that it could ram its way through the ice to the surface.

The submarine reached the ice-barrier after a frequently delayed voyage from the United States. The engines broke down in mid-Atlantic. The vessel was towed by the U. S. S. Wyoming. It reached Plymouth, Eng., for repairs.

The next phase of the cruise was to Bergen, Norway. Here further repairs were necessary. It reached Advent Bay, Spitzbergen, where after slight mechanical trouble delaying its departure, the Nautilus refueled. With provisions for a long cruise, it proceeded into the Arctic.

Members of the crew said they expected, however, to return to Spitzbergen within three weeks. Wilkins, heading the expedition, hoped to return with many novel as well as practical contributions to man's knowledge of the Polar regions.

Political Leaders Pay Tribute to Late Mrs. Belle Case La Follette

Madison, Wis., Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—Political leaders who sat in councils with Mrs. Belle Case La Follette at the La Follette farm returned today to pay personal tribute prior to her funeral services in the state historical library.

Her body, brought from Washington, where she died, rested in a front room of the red brick home on a knoll overlooking Lake Mandota. In the same room, the helpmate whom her husband, the late Robert Marion La Follette, progressive leader, termed his "wisest and best counsellor," often sat in the conferences which guided her husband to eminence, established their elder son, Robert, as his successor in the senate, and made the younger son, Phillip, governor.

The simple funeral services were to be followed by interment in Forest Hill cemetery beside the unmarked grave of her husband, a shrine for his admirers.

'DWIGHT MORROW FOR PRESIDENT' CLUB IS FORMED

St. Paul, Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—A group of disgruntled republicans today completed organization of the "Dwight Morrow for President" club.

Members of the club announced that they will send a delegation to the republican national convention for Morrow and hope to unite all existing sentiment here for the New Jersey senator.

"The need of the moment is for real leadership in our national affairs," Allen V. Junkin, president of the club, said. President Hoover betrayed us with his 'false leadership' by concealing facts of the depression, a ruinous tariff and opposition to adequate farm relief."

The companies the Cushing Refining Company, and Black Well Oil & Gas Company, agreed to pay $1 a barrel for oil if the military ban would be lifted from production of the Blackwell Oil & Gas Company.

WICKERSHAM COMMISSION MAKES REPORT

RAMIFICATIONS OF SECRET ILLEGAL INDUSTRIES ARE VAST

GOVERNMENT SPENDS 52 MILLION A YEAR METING JUSTICE TO CRIMINALS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Aug. 21.—Crime costs the American people far more than $1,207,856,821 a year, the Wickersham commission disclosed today in its 11th report entitled "The Cost of Crime."

How much more, the commission declined to say. It found the ramifications of secret illegal industries too vast and its own funds too short. It refused even to fix a definite minimum figure but it cited many items in the crime ledger, which, added together brought the total well over the billion mark.

Some items were roughly estimated, some were frank guesses, while others—like the profits from racketeering—were left with a perplexing question mark in the tables of costs.

A further investigation was recommended to determine the facts.

The commission did convince itself definitely of many things, the most important of which were:

The federal government is spending $52,786,000 a year to administer justice to criminals.

Three hundred cities are spending $247,700,000.

Sixty-six per cent of the federal expenditure goes for prohibition enforcement.

Some unnamed cities have wasteful and inefficient criminal justice machinery.

An immediate investigation should be made into racketeering—which is called America's most costly modern crime.

An investigation should be made to determine which cities are wasteful.

With all its great expense, criminal justice machinery does not cost too much.

A weeding out of laws—eliminating unnecessary social restrictions—might well be undertaken as a measure of economy.

Although the word prohibition is not directly mentioned in that connection, the commission incorporated in its report the report of its leading investigator, Eidney P. Simpson of the New York bar, who said:

"A part of the money now required to be expended in the administration of criminal justice is spent in the enforcement of statutes applying to conduct with which it is a matter of debate whether the people and the criminal courts are intrinsically fitted to deal and which must, in some cases, at least, be regarded as outside the limits of effective legal action by means of the criminal law.

"A thorough overhauling of our criminal codes with a view to appraising the social advantage of such statutes and comparing that advantage, if any, with the cost of their administration would appear highly desirable from an economic standpoint."

"It is clear, we think, that the cost of enforcing the criminal law would be less if it did not attempt to forbid and punish act participated in by large numbers of otherwise law abiding citizens who do not regard such prohibited acts as 'criminal' except in a technical sense.

"However, the desirability of thus reducing the burden imposed on the tax paying public by expenditures for criminal justice will undoubtedly be determined in the light of views as to social considerations with which we are not concerned in this report."

The commission was concerned over racketeering—the process of extorting money by threats from legitimate and illegitimate business. It found that racketeering now is probably the most profitable form of crime and "had to come to pervade a substantial part of the national economic life."

Investigator Simpson reported to the commission that "the alliance between racketeering and the activities of certain labor unions is reputed to be close."

"Comprehensive investigation is very difficult," Simpson continued, "and would, indeed be highly dangerous to the investigator. Nevertheless such investigation is a task which urgently needs to be carried out.

"The relationship between racketeering and ordinary business in certain lines appears to have become very close in some cases.

"Another extremely disturbing phase of the matter is the apparently growing tendency toward amicable relationships, cemented by bribery craft, between organized crime and public agencies charged with the duty of law enforcement.

"The cost of administering criminal justice is relatively small in comparison with other economic losses to individuals and to the community resulting from crime.

"It is easier to identify the $5.70 per year changeable to each inhabitant of Chicago on account of municipal police expenditures, than it is to ascertain each such person's share of the amount annually extorted from the public of Chicago by racketeers, but

Although nothing was said about it, or even hinted, to the famous pair, the Japanese aboard the steamer suspected the feminine half of "We" was a bit homesick. They noticed that on one of her numerous visits to the boat as it stood by the monoplane at Ketoi, she picked up a Japanese magazine and glanced idly through it. Finally she came to a picture of a mother and child, and for many minutes gazed alternately at the picture and over the grey seas, as though she might be thinking of her own tiny son, safe in his nursery in the far-off home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Morrow.

Lindbergh at 4 A. M. (1 P. M. Thursday CST.) sent a radio through the Shinshiru Maru, which said:

"Anne (Mrs. Lindbergh) in good health, and spent the time comfortably. I am trying to locate the trouble."

He referred to trouble with the motor of their plane.

The Japanese government decided today to rush an aviation engineer and two mechanics to Nemuro to help Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh on their arrival there.

The Lindberghs, however, must spend another night in the desolate mid-Kurile islands, some 400 miles north of Nemuro, where they were forced down in fog and rough weather Wednesday.

MYSTERY IN SUDDEN DEATH OF YOUNG WOMAN

PATHOLOGIST'S EXAMINATION REVEALS SHE HAD BEEN BEATEN AND STRANGLED

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—Mystery today surrounded the identity of a red-haired woman, about 35 years old, whose bruised and beaten body was found on the Silver Lake road, about 22 miles west of Kenosha.

An autopsy performed by Dr. Edward L. Miloslavich, pathologist of Marquette university, Milwaukee, revealed that the woman, attired in wine-colored dress but wearing neither shoes nor stockings, had been beaten severely and strangled. Lack of bruises on the outside of the throat gave rise to a theory that she had been strangled by a gas.

Police discounted a theory that she was the wife of Harry Morris, alias J. A. Camden, Chicago bootlegger, who was found murdered near Red Wing, Minn., last Monday.

One of the most promising clues to the woman's identity came from Chicago, where Philip Russo, a wealthy merchant, told police he believed the woman might have been his wife, who disappeared July 30, 1930.

Russo's wife, Jean, was 38 years old and was well known as a radio singer. Russo said he had never found any clue as to what became of her. He said her description tallied almost exactly with that of the dead woman except that his wife's eyes were brown, while those of the slain woman were said to be blue-gray.

The body was found by Mr. and Mrs. August Bundesguard, and Mrs. Lillie Mitchell, of Silver Lake, who had started on an early morning fishing excursion. They notified Dr. B. A. Mitchel, who said the woman had been dead about six hours.

Dr. Miloslavich said they were signs of a terriffic struggle before the woman was murdered. He said she had been attacked.

SEEK MEN WHO ATTACKED A 14 YEAR OLD GIRL

SAYS 2 MEN THREW HER INTO THEIR CAR AND ASSAULTED HER IN WOODS

Anoka ,Minn., Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Sheriff O. F. Olson and a posse of irate townspeople and farmers today set out for Lake Netta, 16 miles north of here seeking two men alleged to have attacked a 14 year old girl.

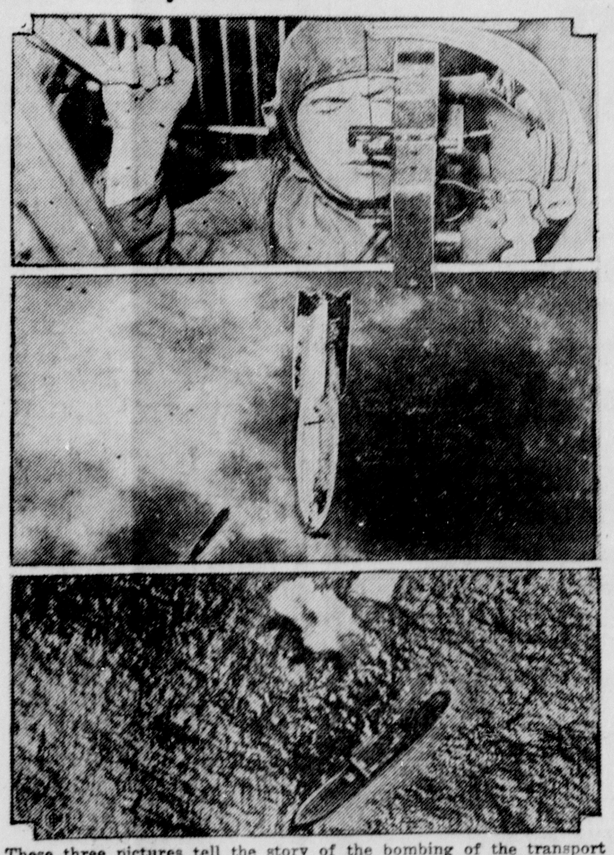

The men were reported to have been seen at the lake, driving an old Ford automobile with a cracked windshield. The sheriff said that another girl had reported an attempt to force her into an automobile.

As Army Tried to Sink Ship

These three pictures tell the story of the bombing of the transport Mt. Shasta by ten U. S. Army bombing planes from Langley Field Va. The Army fliers, although they scored two direct hits, failed to sink the craft while the Navy is reported to have snickered and the Coast Guard actually sank the transport by gunfire. Top picture shows Bomber Charles F. Clemens at the sights ready to drop 100 pounds of destruction on the Mt. Shasta. Center picture shows a bomb as it fell toward its mark far below. Bottom photo depicts the same bomb falling wide of its mark. The aerial attack took place off the Virginia Capes.

SIR HUBERT TO MOVE TOWARD POLE TONIGHT

STARTS THE MOST DANGEROUS PHASE OF DARING NORTHERN CRUISE

NAUTILUS IS EQUIPPED WITH ICE-BREAKING PARAPHERNALIA

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—The submarine Nautilus arrived at the ice barrier on its perilous voyage into polar waters, the newspaper Berlinske Tidende said today.

The dispatch said that Sir Hubert Wilkins, in command, had decided to try moving onward toward the North Pole tonight, on the most dangerous phase of the daring cruise.

The Nautilus was equipped with special ice-breaking paraphernalia which Wilkins said made under-ice cruising safe. In case of emergency, he believed that it could ram its way through the ice to the surface.

The submarine reached the ice-barrier after a frequently delayed voyage from the United States. The engines broke down in mid-Atlantic. The vessel was towed by the U. S. S. Wyoming. It reached Plymouth, Eng., for repairs.

The next phase of the cruise was to Bergen, Norway. Here further repairs were necessary. It reached Advent Bay, Spitzbergen, where after slight mechanical trouble delaying its departure, the Nautilus refueled. With provisions for a long cruise, it proceeded into the Arctic.

Members of the crew said they expected, however, to return to Spitzbergen within three weeks. Wilkins, heading the expedition, hoped to return with many novel as well as practical contributions to man's knowledge of the Polar regions.

Political Leaders Pay Tribute to Late Mrs. Belle Case La Follette

Madison, Wis., Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—Political leaders who sat in councils with Mrs. Belle Case La Follette at the La Follette farm returned today to pay personal tribute prior to her funeral services in the state historical library.

Her body, brought from Washington, where she died, rested in a front room of the red brick home on a knoll overlooking Lake Mandota. In the same room, the helpmate whom her husband, the late Robert Marion La Follette, progressive leader, termed his "wisest and best counsellor," often sat in the conferences which guided her husband to eminence, established their elder son, Robert, as his successor in the senate, and made the younger son, Phillip, governor.

The simple funeral services were to be followed by interment in Forest Hill cemetery beside the unmarked grave of her husband, a shrine for his admirers.

'DWIGHT MORROW FOR PRESIDENT' CLUB IS FORMED

St. Paul, Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—A group of disgruntled republicans today completed organization of the "Dwight Morrow for President" club.

Members of the club announced that they will send a delegation to the republican national convention for Morrow and hope to unite all existing sentiment here for the New Jersey senator.

"The need of the moment is for real leadership in our national affairs," Allen V. Junkin, president of the club, said. President Hoover betrayed us with his 'false leadership' by concealing facts of the depression, a ruinous tariff and opposition to adequate farm relief."

Will Pay $1 Barrel for Crude Oil if Military Ban Lifted

Oklahoma City, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Gov. William H. Murray was asked by two independent oil concerns today to issue an executive order permitting them to take crude oil from the Oklahoma City field.

The companies the Cushing Refining Company, and Black Well Oil & Gas Company, agreed to pay $1 a barrel for oil if the military ban would be lifted from production of the Blackwell Oil & Gas Company.

WICKERSHAM COMMISSION MAKES REPORT

RAMIFICATIONS OF SECRET ILLEGAL INDUSTRIES ARE VAST

GOVERNMENT SPENDS 52 MILLION A YEAR METING JUSTICE TO CRIMINALS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Aug. 21.—Crime costs the American people far more than $1,207,856,821 a year, the Wickersham commission disclosed today in its 11th report entitled "The Cost of Crime."

How much more, the commission declined to say. It found the ramifications of secret illegal industries too vast and its own funds too short. It refused even to fix a definite minimum figure but it cited many items in the crime ledger, which, added together brought the total well over the billion mark.

Some items were roughly estimated, some were frank guesses, while others—like the profits from racketeering—were left with a perplexing question mark in the tables of costs.

A further investigation was recommended to determine the facts.

The commission did convince itself definitely of many things, the most important of which were:

The federal government is spending $52,786,000 a year to administer justice to criminals.

Three hundred cities are spending $247,700,000.

Sixty-six per cent of the federal expenditure goes for prohibition enforcement.

An immediate investigation should be made into racketeering—which is called America's most costly modern crime.

An investigation should be made to determine which cities are wasteful.

With all its great expense, criminal justice machinery does not cost too much.

A weeding out of laws—eliminating unnecessary social restrictions—might well be undertaken as a measure of economy.

Although the word prohibition is not directly mentioned in that connection, the commission incorporated in its report the report of its leading investigator, Eidney P. Simpson of the New York bar, who said:

"A part of the money now required to be expended in the administration of criminal justice is spent in the enforcement of statutes applying to conduct with which it is a matter of debate whether the people and the criminal courts are intrinsically fitted to deal and which must, in some cases, at least, be regarded as outside the limits of effective legal action by means of the criminal law.

"A thorough overhauling of our criminal codes with a view to appraising the social advantage of such statutes and comparing that advantage, if any, with the cost of their administration would appear highly desirable from an economic standpoint."

"It is clear, we think, that the cost of enforcing the criminal law would be less if it did not attempt to forbid and punish act participated in by large numbers of otherwise law abiding citizens who do not regard such prohibited acts as 'criminal' except in a technical sense.

"However, the desirability of thus reducing the burden imposed on the tax paying public by expenditures for criminal justice will undoubtedly be determined in the light of views as to social considerations with which we are not concerned in this report."

The commission was concerned over racketeering—the process of extorting money by threats from legitimate and illegitimate business. It found that racketeering now is probably the most profitable form of crime and "had to come to pervade a substantial part of the national economic life."

Investigator Simpson reported to the commission that "the alliance between racketeering and the activities of certain labor unions is reputed to be close."

"Comprehensive investigation is very difficult," Simpson continued, "and would, indeed be highly dangerous to the investigator. Nevertheless such investigation is a task which urgently needs to be carried out.

"The relationship between racketeering and ordinary business in certain lines appears to have become very close in some cases.

"Another extremely disturbing phase of the matter is the apparently growing tendency toward amicable relationships, cemented by bribery craft, between organized crime and public agencies charged with the duty of law enforcement.

"The cost of administering criminal justice is relatively small in comparison with other economic losses to individuals and to the community resulting from crime.

"It is easier to identify the $5.70 per year changeable to each inhabitant of Chicago on account of municipal police expenditures, than it is to ascertain each such person's share of the amount annually extorted from the public of Chicago by racketeers, but

EXPLAIN SIMILARITY OF ROASTING PROCESS AND HOUR-GLASS

Hills Bros.' Patented Process Produces a Fine, Even Roast Because Coffee Berries Pass Through the Roasters "a Little at a Time"

A stream of sand sifting from a globe on top through a narrow neck into a corresponding globe on the bottom . . . that's an hour-glass. And just as its accuracy depends upon an even, continuous flow . . . a little at a time . . . so the matchless, uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting — Hills Bros.' patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time.

Temperature and flow of coffee through the roasters are automatically controlled with this process. As a result, every berry is roasted to the degree that assures perfect flavor in every pound. Bulk-roasting methods seldom achieve such a thing.

It is Controlled Roasting that gives Hills Bros. Coffee a flavor no other coffee has. Insist on Hills Bros. Coffee. It is packed in vacuum cans. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of these cans. Even ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee is ever-fresh. Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

EXPLAIN SIMILARITY OF ROASTING PROCESS AND HOUR-GLASS

Hills Bros.' Patented Process Produces a Fine, Even Roast Because Coffee Berries Pass Through the Roasters "a Little at a Time"

A stream of sand sifting from a globe on top through a narrow neck into a corresponding globe on the bottom . . . that's an hour-glass. And just as its accuracy depends upon an even, continuous flow . . . a little at a time . . . so the matchless, uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting — Hills Bros.' patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time.

Temperature and flow of coffee through the roasters are automatically controlled with this process. As a result, every berry is roasted to the degree that assures perfect flavor in every pound. Bulk-roasting methods seldom achieve such a thing.

It is Controlled Roasting that gives Hills Bros. Coffee a flavor no other coffee has. Insist on Hills Bros. Coffee. It is packed in vacuum cans. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of these cans. Even ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee is ever-fresh. Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

Mrs. J. P. Dullum accompanied her sister, Mrs. Keller to Sauk Rapids and visited there and at Sartell one week.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Wiesenberg and son were week end guests at Dullum's.

Mr. and Mrs. James Maguire of Crosby called at Dullum's Tuesday. They were returning home from Northfield where they had been visiting for a time.

The school board met Tuesday evening and elected Miss Mae Fitzpatrick to teach No. 5 this year.

Those of us who lost out at the school election felt much disappointed and felt that we were still in the rut of exteam days.

A swarm of bees is making its home in Patrick's chimney. We hope that there will be good sleighing by Christmas so that Santa Claus can get us a cake of honey.

Mrs. Thad Cooley left for Hillman Wednesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schmolke were guests at Wm. Britton's.

The 4-H club members have been spending a few days at the county fair. The 4-H club members also spent Saturday at the Ironton fair.

Make an Annual Health Audit

ACCORDING to the medical directors of the Modern Woodman fraternal insurance order, when physical examinations are made year in and year out by the same medical man, they are bound to become valuable. The patient, as well as the physician, should preserve a record of each examination. Comparative data is, therefore, preserved and any changes in weight, lung condition, heart action, blood pressure, etc., are quickly detected. Such records will show invaluable testimony regarding the patient's physical changes and tendencies. Viewed from every possible angle, such a regular habit of auditing one's physical condition seems to us one of the most valuable lessons learned in the last few years. Annual physical auditing is just as surely a sign of prudence and sanity as open-air exercise or the buying of life insurance.

Annual records of one's bodily resources are as useful to the individual as annual reports of banks and corporations are to the depositors and stockholders. The two are closely related, and the great wonder is that men of prominent positions in the business world, who always know their bank balances to a penny and the actual condition of their business, should have delayed so long and have been so slow to perceive the substantial value of the services their family physician can render them, even in periods of seeming good health.

A man of delicate constitution who has had to watch his health for years and who calls on the doctor frequently is, perhaps, safer than he who has enjoyed excellent health, because he has given the doctor an opportunity to detect and correct constitutional discrepancies before they become serious. It is the strong, vigorous man, who has never known a sick day, who should spend enough time annually for a careful overhauling for because of his usual contempt for minor symptoms, he may find himself in the clutch of some insidious malady before he knows it. The time to detect and cure diseases is in their early stages before tissue destruction has begun.

Very few laymen realize the advances that have been made in the methods of detecting diseases in the early stages.

Sharp Lugs Do Damage on Oil and Tar Roads

A WARNING against driving threshing engines, tractors, or other machines with sharp lugs or cleats over oiled or tarred highways has been issued by the Minnesota Highway department. The warning followed a number of reports of damage by machines on bituminous treated roads.

Tractor owners living near any bituminus road are urged to get a new set of bands or flat rims for the traction wheels. These bands cost from $15 to $30. They will prevent damage to the road surface, save wear and tear on the tractor itself, and facilitate movement on the highways.

Reducing Number of Counties

A NEW way to save in administrative expense and consequently reduce taxes is to consolidate counties.

Lower taxes and an improvement of the services by counties are the aims of county consolidation proponents in several states where the reduction in the number of counties are being seriously considered, according to Dr. A. H. Benton, economist of North Dakota Agricultural college.

Dr. Benton said that since it has been found either inadvisable or impossible to reduce state, school or even city and village taxes to any appreciable extent, attention is being directed to the county or township.

Cynics on Matrimony

THERE are cynics on the subject of matrimony. We know a press association whose men send out reports on "martial" adventures when they mean "marital."

However, as one married man stated when there were no females around, "We have had only one fight in our family and that started when we got married."

CONGRESSMAN PAUL J. KVALE of Benson blames improper legislation as the principal cause for business depression. Gus Ludwig of New York believes that if congress took a vacation for 10 years it would improve business conditions. As Ludwig aptly expressed it, he believes "government has no business being in business."

THE Japanese are preparing for the reception to be accorded Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh when they arrive in Tokio. The hotel where he is to stay has bought a lengthened bedstead and seamstresses are at work lengthening the quilts and sheets. The average bed in Japan is for the average Japanese and not one of the natives is as tall as the eagle of the skies.

GOVERNOR FLOYD B. OLSON is general chairman of the committee of 100 representative business and agricultural leaders of five states who will sponsor the Northwest Livestock Show to be staged in conjunction with the Minnesota State Fair, September 5 to 12.

BELLE FOURCE, S. D., has a novel club called the Rocking Chair club. At a recent meeting 17 ladies were present whose combined ages totalled 1,164 years. The oldest members of the group are Mrs. William Martin who is 91 and Mrs. B. F. Teall, who is 90.

WHEN your telephone rings late at night after you are in bed, that is when you will appreciate having an extension telephone at your bedside. And the same thing happens when the housewife is in her sewing room upstairs and the telephone rings downstairs.

THERE are different ways to get hardened for a football season. Out at the University of South Dakota nearly two dozen candidates are working in a ditch digging gang getting in trim for the athletic season.

CONGRESSMAN PAUL J. KVALE of Benson blames improper legislation as the principal cause for business depression. Gus Ludwig of New York believes that if congress took a vacation for 10 years it would improve business conditions. As Ludwig aptly expressed it, he believes "government has no business being in business."

THE Japanese are preparing for the reception to be accorded Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh when they arrive in Tokio. The hotel where he is to stay has bought a lengthened bedstead and seamstresses are at work lengthening the quilts and sheets. The average bed in Japan is for the average Japanese and not one of the natives is as tall as the eagle of the skies.

GOVERNOR FLOYD B. OLSON is general chairman of the committee of 100 representative business and agricultural leaders of five states who will sponsor the Northwest Livestock Show to be staged in conjunction with the Minnesota State Fair, September 5 to 12.

BELLE FOURCE, S. D., has a novel club called the Rocking Chair club. At a recent meeting 17 ladies were present whose combined ages totalled 1,164 years. The oldest members of the group are Mrs. William Martin who is 91 and Mrs. B. F. Teall, who is 90.

WHEN your telephone rings late at night after you are in bed, that is when you will appreciate having an extension telephone at your bedside. And the same thing happens when the housewife is in her sewing room upstairs and the telephone rings downstairs.

THERE are different ways to get hardened for a football season. Out at the University of South Dakota nearly two dozen candidates are working in a ditch digging gang getting in trim for the athletic season.

McLARNIN WINS DECISIVE 10-ROUND BOUT OVER PETROLLE

SMALL CROWD SEES FIGHT AT YANKEE STADIUM

McLARNIN REASSERTS RIGHT TO RANKING AS BEST WELTERWEIGHT IN RING TODAY

PETROLLE, A REAL GAMESTER, EXTENDED HIS HEAVIER OPPONENT TO THE LIMIT

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Jimmy McLarnin may never win the world's welterweight championship—an honor he has deserved for several years—but he promises to go down in history as one of the greatest welterweight fighters of all time.

McLarnin reasserted his right to ranking as the best welterweight in the ring today and to a place with Dempsey, Leonard, Gans, et al, in that select group of stars recognized as the best fighters in ring history, with a decisive 10-round triumph over Billy Petrolle at Yankee stadium last night.

It was unfortunate that the smallest crowd ever to witness a major outdoor boxing show in the metropolitan area was on hand to see the contest for McLarnin gave the most impressive performance of his entire career. Petrolle, a real gamester, extended his heavier opponent to the limit and the 12,000 spectators who paid an estimated $35,000 for the bout witnessed a brilliantly contest battle.

McLarnin failed to score the knockout he desired to avenge a terrific drubbing from Petrolle last December but he won more decively than in the second match between the two last spring and removed all doubts as to his ability to whip the Fargo Express. He dealt Petrolle a sound thrashing and several times had the westerner on the verge of a knockout.

None but a Petrolle could stand up under such a pounding. Billy not only stood up but he kept marching forward to press the attack. He backed up only once during the fight—in the eighth round when he was on the brink of a knockout from the effects of a terrific right to the body—and then only for a moment, before leaping in again to throw hard left hand punches at McLarnin's head.

McLarnin's showing was especially impressive because of the manner in which he combined his boxing and punching talents to win.

Billy was cut badly about the nose and mouth early in the bout and at the finish he presented a sorry figure, staggering to his corner so arm and leg weary that it seemed unlikely he could have gone another round. McLarnin was unmarked and fresh enough to turn handsprings in mid-ring when the unanimous decision of Referee Patsy Haley and Judges Geo. Kelly and Charles F. Mashison was announced.

McLarnin was much more aggressive than in his last bout with Petrolle. He allowed the Dakotan to do the forcing in the first three rounds but took command in the fourth and completely dominated the remainder of the contest, winning every round after the fifth to take a total of seven sessions. Petrolle won two, the first and fifth and held McLarnin even in the third.

The victory again established McLarnin as the logical challenger for the welterweight title and it is reported that both Madison Square Garden and Chicago stadium are attempting to match the coast marvel with the world's champion Jack Thompson.

McGRAW MEN STRENGTHEN HOLD ON SECOND PLACE

ARE GAINING AT EXPENSE OF CINCINNATI REDS

HOPE TO ADD TO THEIR ADVANTAGE BEFORE THEY MEET THE CHICAGO CUBS

PITTSBURGH AND BOSTON DIVIDE A DOUBLEHEADER YESTERDAY

By L. S. CAMERON
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—John McGraw's Nw York Giants are strengthening their hold on second place in the National league pennant race at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds. With two consecutive victories over the Reds to their credit and two games left to play in the series, the Giants hope to add to their advantage before they meet the Chicago Cubs in a six game series next week.

The Cubs, New York's rival for the runner-up position to the St. Louis Cardinals, are having their difficulties with Brooklyn and now appear to have little chance of improving their standings before moving into the Polo grounds Sunday.

New York increased its advantage over Chicago to one full game yesterday with a 3 to 1 triumph over Cincinnati while Chicago was losing a 4 to 1 verdict to Brooklyn. Carl Hubbell outpitched Larry Benton for the Giants victory, allowing only 7 hits.

Strong relief pitching by the veteran Jack Quinn beat Chicago, William Watson Clark weakened in the ninth after shutting out the Cubs with three hits in eight innings.

Pittsbuugh and Boston divided a doubleheader, the Braves winning the first 2 to 1 in 10 innigs and Pittsburgh taking the second 5 to 4. Ed Brandt chalked up his sixteenth victory of the season in holding Pittsburgh to four hits in the opener. Heinie Meine allowed Boston 12 hits in the second game but won when his mates broke a tie with a two run rally in the seventh.

St. Louis' scheduled game with Philadelphia was postponed because of threatening weather.

Philadelphia and Washington, the American league leader and runner-up, suffered defeats. Chicago defeated Philadelphia, 11 to 6, with a six run attack on Hoyt in the fifth clinching the contest.

Cleveland came from behind with a four run rally in the fifth and again with five runs in the seventh to defeat Washington, 10 to 8.

Home runs by Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Joe Sewell gave the New York Yankees a 7 to 5 victory over St. Louis. Ruth's homer with the bases loaded in the ninth clinched the contest.

Arthur Herring pitched Detroit to a 7 to 2 triumph over Boston, allowing only 9 scattered hits.

QUINA LEE WINS BOUT WITH DEATH

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Quinn Lee, Birmingham, Ala., once a power among flyweight boxers today apparently had won a battle with death that closed his ring career.

Lee's left arm, a darting left that stabbed its way to points over the best of the flyweight division, was amputated by physicians Thursday to stop the spread of gangrene.

Lee on his way to meet Frankie Wolfram, Winnipeg, in a feature bout here was injured in an automobile accident. Lee was to have fought Midget Wolgast for the flyweight title next month.

Savoldi's first marriage ended in a divorce last fall and caused him to withdraw from Notre Dame before the end of the football season.

Aggravating "Robbie"

By HARDIN BURNLEY

WILBERT ROBINSON, like the traditional fat man, is a naturally jovial soul, but managing the hapless Brooklyn Dodgers is enough to sorely try the happiest disposition.

"Uncle Robbie" started the season with the highest hopes. He had visions of a pennant flapping in the breeze from the flagpole at Ebbets Field, and he was not alone in these prophetic visions. Many a baseball expert placed the Robins on top in his pre-season predictions, and several famous ball players, through the newsprint mouthpieces of their ghost writers, tabbed the Brooklyn gang as the next champs.

A few weeks after the pennant race had started, however, said experts went into hiding. Robbie's team got off to a terrible start, and it began to look as if the only title they would ever win was the cellar championship.

The experts said that this couldn't continue; the inherent class of the Brooklyn team was bound to bring it to the fore sooner or later. And this time the experts were right. The Dodgers suddenly began to function on all cylinders—they went away from there, and didn't stop climbing until they were almost at the top.

Uncle Robbie was smiling again, and it looked as though the Cardinals might not have an easy time of it after all.

The Brooklyn fans, ever hopeful, were getting ready to send in their reservations for World Series seats, when something happened. A veritable avalanche of bone-headed plays, that base-running of which only the Dodgers are capable, the lame arms sustained by Quinn and Phelps, injuries and bad luck in general—all these factors combined to make the Dodgers hit the toboggan again. On that ill-starred Western trip they were hitting, but they didn't make the hits count—in one infamous game against the Pirates, Robbie's playful boys garnered 17 hits and scored exactly 6 runs!

The Dodgers may make a few more spurts before the race is finished, but whether they do or not, Uncle Wilbert will be on the verge of nervous prostration if Babe Herman and Co. continue their boobish base-running antics.

CHEVROLET

Step out of any other low-priced car, step into a Chevrolet, and you'll learn what a difference six cylinders make.

"Idle" the engine—and the whole car remains steady. Open the throttle—the power flows evenly. Accelerate—throttle down—go fifteen or fifty—and this smoothness stays with you whatever you do. For six-cylinder smoothness is built into the motor—and objectionable vibration never even starts!

Yet smoothness is only part of your six-cylinder experience. There's greater quietness, because noisy vibration is gone. There's greater comfort, because built-in smoothness doesn't tire the driver or passengers. There's greater flexibility, because the power-impulses of a six overlap. And response is more positive, performance more elastic. A six is much easier to handle!

And particularly, if you raise the hood of a Chevrolet and watch the engine running smoothly and steadily, you'll realize that six cylinders also mean greater dependability.

You owe it to yourself—to see and drive a Chevrolet today. And remember when you do—that no other car is so economical to operate as the powerful Chevrolet Six!

HOPE TO ADD TO THEIR ADVANTAGE BEFORE THEY MEET THE CHICAGO CUBS

PITTSBURGH AND BOSTON DIVIDE A DOUBLEHEADER YESTERDAY

By L. S. CAMERON
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—John McGraw's Nw York Giants are strengthening their hold on second place in the National league pennant race at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds. With two consecutive victories over the Reds to their credit and two games left to play in the series, the Giants hope to add to their advantage before they meet the Chicago Cubs in a six game series next week.

The Cubs, New York's rival for the runner-up position to the St. Louis Cardinals, are having their difficulties with Brooklyn and now appear to have little chance of improving their standings before moving into the Polo grounds Sunday.

New York increased its advantage over Chicago to one full game yesterday with a 3 to 1 triumph over Cincinnati while Chicago was losing a 4 to 1 verdict to Brooklyn. Carl Hubbell outpitched Larry Benton for the Giants victory, allowing only 7 hits.

Strong relief pitching by the veteran Jack Quinn beat Chicago, William Watson Clark weakened in the ninth after shutting out the Cubs with three hits in eight innings.

Pittsbuugh and Boston divided a doubleheader, the Braves winning the first 2 to 1 in 10 innigs and Pittsburgh taking the second 5 to 4. Ed Brandt chalked up his sixteenth victory of the season in holding Pittsburgh to four hits in the opener. Heinie Meine allowed Boston 12 hits in the second game but won when his mates broke a tie with a two run rally in the seventh.

St. Louis' scheduled game with Philadelphia was postponed because of threatening weather.

Philadelphia and Washington, the American league leader and runner-up, suffered defeats. Chicago defeated Philadelphia, 11 to 6, with a six run attack on Hoyt in the fifth clinching the contest.

Cleveland came from behind with a four run rally in the fifth and again with five runs in the seventh to defeat Washington, 10 to 8.

Home runs by Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Joe Sewell gave the New York Yankees a 7 to 5 victory over St. Louis. Ruth's homer with the bases loaded in the ninth clinched the contest.

Arthur Herring pitched Detroit to a 7 to 2 triumph over Boston, allowing only 9 scattered hits.

QUINA LEE WINS BOUT WITH DEATH

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Quinn Lee, Birmingham, Ala., once a power among flyweight boxers today apparently had won a battle with death that closed his ring career.

Lee's left arm, a darting left that stabbed its way to points over the best of the flyweight division, was amputated by physicians Thursday to stop the spread of gangrene.

Lee on his way to meet Frankie Wolfram, Winnipeg, in a feature bout here was injured in an automobile accident. Lee was to have fought Midget Wolgast for the flyweight title next month.

Aggravating "Robbie"

By HARDIN BURNLEY

WILBERT ROBINSON, like the traditional fat man, is a naturally jovial soul, but managing the hapless Brooklyn Dodgers is enough to sorely try the happiest disposition.

"Uncle Robbie" started the season with the highest hopes. He had visions of a pennant flapping in the breeze from the flagpole at Ebbets Field, and he was not alone in these prophetic visions. Many a baseball expert placed the Robins on top in his pre-season predictions, and several famous ball players, through the newsprint mouthpieces of their ghost writers, tabbed the Brooklyn gang as the next champs.

A few weeks after the pennant race had started, however, said experts went into hiding. Robbie's team got off to a terrible start, and it began to look as if the only title they would ever win was the cellar championship.

The experts said that this couldn't continue; the inherent class of the Brooklyn team was bound to bring it to the fore sooner or later. And this time the experts were right. The Dodgers suddenly began to function on all cylinders—they went away from there, and didn't stop climbing until they were almost at the top.

Uncle Robbie was smiling again, and it looked as though the Cardinals might not have an easy time of it after all.

The Brooklyn fans, ever hopeful, were getting ready to send in their reservations for World Series seats, when something happened. A veritable avalanche of bone-headed plays, that base-running of which only the Dodgers are capable, the lame arms sustained by Quinn and Phelps, injuries and bad luck in general—all these factors combined to make the Dodgers hit the toboggan again. On that ill-starred Western trip they were hitting, but they didn't make the hits count—in one infamous game against the Pirates, Robbie's playful boys garnered 17 hits and scored exactly 6 runs!

The Dodgers may make a few more spurts before the race is finished, but whether they do or not, Uncle Wilbert will be on the verge of nervous prostration if Babe Herman and Co. continue their boobish base-running antics.

CHEVROLET

Step out of any other low-priced car, step into a Chevrolet, and you'll learn what a difference six cylinders make.

"Idle" the engine—and the whole car remains steady. Open the throttle—the power flows evenly. Accelerate—throttle down—go fifteen or fifty—and this smoothness stays with you whatever you do. For six-cylinder smoothness is built into the motor—and objectionable vibration never even starts!

Yet smoothness is only part of your six-cylinder experience. There's greater quietness, because noisy vibration is gone. There's greater comfort, because built-in smoothness doesn't tire the driver or passengers. There's greater flexibility, because the power-impulses of a six overlap. And response is more positive, performance more elastic. A six is much easier to handle!

And particularly, if you raise the hood of a Chevrolet and watch the engine running smoothly and steadily, you'll realize that six cylinders also mean greater dependability.

You owe it to yourself—to see and drive a Chevrolet today. And remember when you do—that no other car is so economical to operate as the powerful Chevrolet Six!

Twenty beautiful models, at prices ranging from . . . $475 to $675

T. W. COX IS NOW COMMISSIONER OF CONSERVATION BD.

SERVED AS STATE FORESTER UNTIL 1924, DISAGREEMENT WITH FORMER GOV. PREUS

MORE RECENTLY SERVED AS FORESTRY ADVISOR TO THE BRAZILIAN GOVERNMENT

St. Paul, Aug. 21.—(AP)—T. W. Cox turned today from studying tropical Brazilian jungles to helping conserve Minnesota pine forests, ore mines and wild game.

Cox, who served as state forester until 1924 when he had a disagreement with former Governor J. A. O. Preus and more recently was forestry advisor to the Brazilian government, was to be sworn in today before the conservation board.

With the five members of the board, Cox is responsible for the five state departments of mines and minerals, lands and timber, drainage and waters, game and fish and forestry. Each previously had been independent parts of the state government.

"I am proud to have been selected in this position to serve my native state," Cox said, "and yet I am humble before the tremendous responsibilities of the job."

He said no matters of policy would be outlined until his conference with the conservation board members.

W. D. Stewart, present game and fish commissioner, and Grover M. Conzet, state forester, will be retained as directors of their departments. No definite reports were circulated regarding the other three directors although F. A. Wildes, who acted as superintendent of mines when his department was under the state auditor, probably will be retained in that position.

William McEwen, Duluth was chosen permanent chairman of the conservation board. Other members are Richard Bailey, Virginia; John Foley, Wabasha, Ernest R. Reiff, St. Paul, and James P. Williams, Minneapolis.

Cox was voted for by all except Reiff. Selection of Cox came after the American Legion had endorsed Parker O. Anderson, University of Minnesota farm forestry extension service expert. Cox it was said was supported by Governor Floyd B. Olson although the governor gave the board a free hand in the appointment. The commissioner will be responsible to the board and removable by them.

The new commissioner was born at Glenwood. He was graduated from the Glenwood high school and a forestry course at the University of Minnesota. Cox served in the federal forestry service under Gifford Pinchot, now governor of Pennsylvania. After several years with the government, he was appointed Minnesota forester.

Eight years ago he was forced out of the state government through a controversy with Governor Preus after a disagreement over timber policy. Cox then became superintendent of the upper Mississippi game refuge extending from Lake Pepin near Red Wing, Minn., to Rock Island, Ill.

In 1929 he went to Brazil to organize a forestry service for that country's government. He returned here recently.

Both the conservation board of five members and the post of conservation commissioner were created by the 1931 legislautre. The formation of the unified conservation body had been one of Governor Olson's campaign planks. The position of commissioner pays $5,000 a year but the members of the board do not receive pay.

Other candidates for the commissionership beside Cox and Anderson were John I. Levin, clerk of the state house of representatives, St. Paul; Fred Bessette, former state senator from Orr, Minn.; and P. W. O'Grady, Minneapolis.

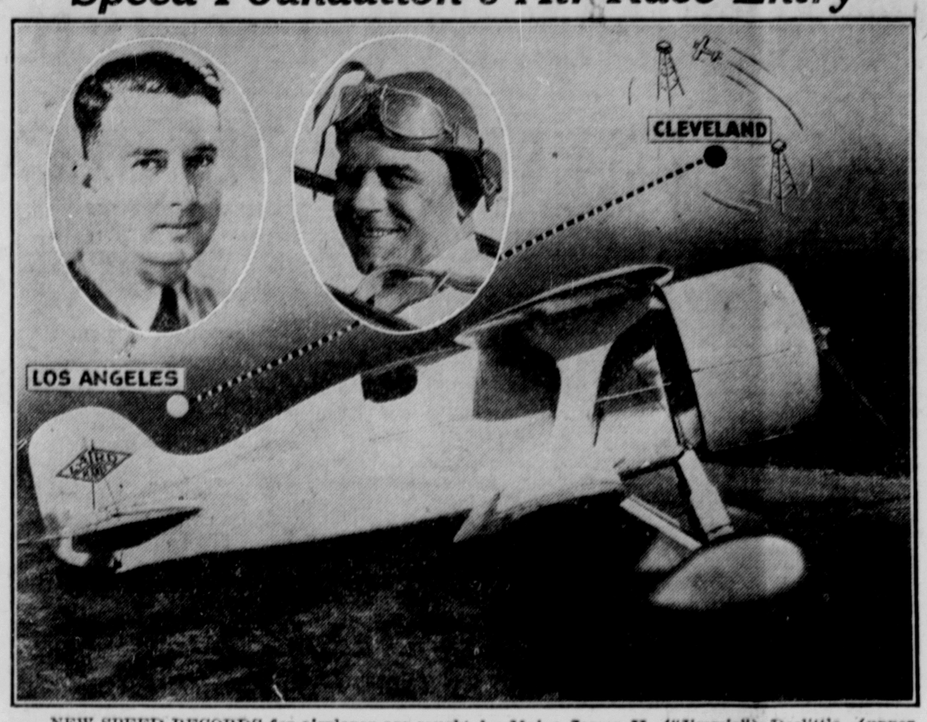

After today's session ,the new conservation commissioner, W. T. Cox issued the following statement:

"In accepting the appointment as commissioner of conservation, I am deeply appreciative of the honor you have conferred on me and the trust you have placed in me. At the same time I realize the heavy responsibilities that go with the position.

"Principals of good business organization must be followed and requisite authority given the men on whom responsibility rests for the results. I assure you, however, gentlemen, that when any change in departmental activities, or major change in the personnel of any division is believed desirable, such proposed change will be first submitted to the commission for its consideration and approval.

"With the guidance of the commission, it will be a pleasure to me to give my best thought and effort to this cause in which we are all so deeply concerned."

His new plane—a Laird Speedwing (shown above) will have an approximate speed of 300 miles an hour. Cliff W. # Army's Mt. Shasta Bombing Fiasco Tickled "Not-So-Obsolete" Navy

* * * * * * * * *

Naval Authorities Had Laugh on Advocates of Large Air Armada, Who Would Scrap Battleships as Out-of-Date, When Army Bombers Failed to Sink Crippled Transport Off Virginia Capes.

When the theory of our foremost air experts, among them General William Mitchell, former Assistant Chief of the Air Service, that a battleship hadn't a chance when attacked by a bombing plane, was recently tested off the Virginia Capes, score one was chalked up for the Navy. After considerable trouble, the old army transport, Mt. Shasta, which was to be the target in the test, was located by the bombing squadron from Langley Field. The big planes dropped their load of 300-pound bombs and, although they made two direct hits on the ship, she remained afloat and the planes were compelled to fly back to their base leaving her in undisputed possession of the battleground. The condemned ship was sunk next day by a Coast Guard cutter which serenely sailed up to her and banged a few 100- pound shells into her hull.

Judge Alfred L. Thwing will be the principal speaker at the Cass county fair at Pillager on Tuesday, September 15. The Legion auxiliary band of Brainerd will also play that day. The Pillager Herald has the following to say about the ladies: "This ladies band has an enviable reputation and on numerous occasions have played at important gatherings in various parts of the nation. It is worth treble the price of the admission to the fair just to hear this band."

SHELL SHOCK VET IS SAD CASE HERE

Telephones Home at Pine River to Rush Reserves Here to Stave Off German Attack

Brainerd is a long ways off from the not to be forgotten battle scarred grounds of France but even in these times of peace the war leaves its pitiful mark on veterans who served their country faithfully, gave their life blood and lost their senses from the war's horrid experiences.

Such is the case of a Pine River veteran who was taken for protection by Brainerd police last night. The man asked permission to call his home. Over the telephone he asked members of his family to recruit as many men as possible and to rush them to Brainerd with machine funs to stave off an attack of this town by the Germans.

Authorities will send the veteran to his home where they will ask medical aid for him.

The man is said to have spent several years in a hospital from shell shock.

MAKI FINED $50 ON NUISANCE COUNT

Valentine Maki plead guilty in municipal court this afternoon to maintaining a nuisance at 1310 Maple street S. E. and was fined $50 or 40 days.

Indian Hospital at Walker

The possibility of an Indian hospital being built at Walker in the near future is being pushed by northern Cass county boosters. The hospital would be for Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin and possibly Montana Indians. Congressman Harold Knutson is aiding the movement. Henry Fisher, Osseo, made the mistake of trying to pass an alleged forged check at the Citizens State Bank of Brainerd. Today he was held from municipal court on the charge of forgery. He will be arraigned in district court at the fall term.

County authorities said that Fisher had previously served a jail sentence for forgery. They asserted in the compalint that he forged the name of H. S. Bliss, Brainerd saw mill operator, to a $45 check and passed it at the O'Brien Mercantile Co. and that he tried to cash a $50 check at the bank when caught.

No bail was given in municipal court, the offense being a district court action.

ALLEGED MOTOR THIEF IS HELD

Johnson Tried to Sell Outboard Motor to Game Warden; Ownership is Traced

Lawrence Johnson, St. Paul, vacationist at a summer cottage on North Round Lake had a boat and outboard motor he wished to sell.

A. P. Cardle, deputy game warden here, happened to drop in at the cottage.

"Do you want to buy a boat and kicker."

"That depends on the price."

"Sell them for $150."

"I'm Scotch, I'll give you $125."

And so a deal was discussed that brought Johnson into municipal court this morning on the charge of the theft of an outboard motor, valued at $190 from the Parks Garage at Nisswa.

After hearing the evidence Judge J. H. Warner ordered Johnson held to district court.

R. L. Parks, garage owner, said a customer, Dawson Brande, lost an outboard motor from his garage the night of July 31.

When Cardle told Parks that he was in line for a good buy of an outboard motor and boat, Parks told him of the loss of the outboard motor. The two returned to the cottage at night. Serial numbers on the motor corresponded with those of the missing motor. Sheriff Frank E. Little was notified and placed Johnson under arrest. The arrest was made August 10.

STORY OF ORIENTAL JEALOUSLY IS TOLD

RESULTED IN BITTER QUARREL BETWEEN FUJIMURA AND BLONDE COMPANION

New York, Aug. 21—(UP)—A story of oriental jealously which resulted in a bitter quarrel between Hisahi Fujimura and his beautiful blonde companion, Mary Reisner, former actress, was unfolded today as investigators visited the liner Belgenland seeking to gain information on the mystery of Fujimura's disappearance from the liner last Friday.

Jan Ribas, a sketch artist, occupied the cabin next to the millionaire Japanese importer on the fatal show boat cruise. The night before Fujimura's disappearance, he told investigators, he was awakened by shouting and screaming in the importer's cabin.

Fujimura, he said, was angry. He berated the girl, ostensibly a governess for the importer's young daughter, for allegedly transferring her affection to a member of her own race. Ribas said he heard the girl scream as if in pain.

Then the following morning, Ribas told J. Edward Lumbard an assistant United States attorney, Fujimura was missing from his cabin.

Ribas had made a sketch aboard of the Japanese importer, a married man whose family resides at Norwalk, Conn. Ribas said he called at the cabin at 7 a. m. the morning the boat docked from its "show boat cruise," Fujimura was gone. He had not been reported seen since.

The story the sketch artist told to the assistant district attorney varied widely from that reported told by the beautiful blonde show girl. She had been quoted as saying she last saw Fujimura at dinner the night before the ship docked.

It was a gay circle in which Fujimura and the show girl moved aboard the vessel, passengers told the investigators. There was poker for high stakes it was said and Fujimura was a regular attendant at their poker games.

Mrs. Reisner moved in the gay dancing and social set, the passengers said. She was popular with the men—of her own race—on the vessel. There was considerable drinking engaged in by Mrs. Reisner and Fujimura but neither was ever seen intoxicated passengers said.

CRIME COST IN THE U. S. OVER BILLION A YEAR

the latter cost is probably more than the former."

Simpson contended that the public paid for the rackets in increased prices.

The commission's own statement was contained in eight of the 658 pages in the report. It included a unanimous opinion of the commission that recommendations in the reports of investigators should be carried out.

"Crime imposes a tremendous economic burden on the community," the commission said. "The economic drainage which results is most serious. It should not require the importance and necessity, from a purely economic standpoint of dealing adequately with the problem."

The investigators, Simpson and his partner, Goldwaite H. Door of the New York bar, figures the federal cost of criminal justice quite accurately, they said.

Police and marshals, cost $35,923,915; prohibition, $25,644,069; per cent 74.1.

Prosecution agencies cost $1,996,976; prohibition $996,720; per cent 49.9.

Courts cost $6,331,015; prohibition $4,308,004; per cent 68.1.

Penal institutions cost $8,480,530; prohibition $3,842,416; per cent 45.3.

Prohibition and pardon cost $53,764; prohibition $37,339; per cent 69.3.

Total cost $52,786,202; prohibition $34,828,550; per cent 66.

This detailed material could not be obtained for the states, because adequate statistics are not collected. The commission recommended that arrangements be made for the annual collection of such statistics in the future.

MINNESOTA CITIES GIVEN COMPARISON

Washington, Aug. 21—(UP)—Minnesota cities have less waste in the administration of criminal justice than exists in most communities the Wickersham commission reported today in connection with the cost of combatting crime in 300 American cities.

Without challenging the cost in any city the commission disclosed that the citizens of Jersey City, N. J., pay the most per capita for criminal justice machinery. The cost cited there was $11.30 a year for each citizen.

The average per capita cost for the 300 cities was $5.47. The lowest rate recorded was Galesburg, Ill, with 92 cents.

The per capita cost was based on the 1930 census.

St. Paul had the best record of Minnesota cities recorded with $3.26 the average per capita cost. Minneapolis pays a per capita cost of $3.58 while Duluth pays $3.85.

Wisconsin cities and their costs included Eau Claire $2.64; Fond Du Lac, $2.73; Green Bay, $2.25; Kenosha, $4.42; Madison $2.46; Milwaukee, $4.86; Oshkosh, $1.90; Racine, $2.07 and Sheboygan, $2.08.

High per capita cost cities included: Boston, $9.64; Washington, D. C., $9.21; Philadelphia, $8.75; New York City, $7.76; Detroit, $7.29; St. Louis, Mo., $6.95; Chicago, $6.65.

The total cost of crime enforcement in Minnesota's three largest cities was given as:

Minneapolis $1,664,150.
St. Paul $885,038.
Duluth $390,297.

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan, seeks a position in the home of wealthy Mrs. Lorrimer, when the latter's son, Travers, a shell-shocked war veteran, enters. At sight of Mary Lou he becomes wildly excited, takes her in his arms and calls her "Delight" and "wife." Later, Mrs. Lorrimer explains that Travers has mistaken Mary Lou for Delight Harford, whom he claims he married in England, but of whom no record can be found. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight to help Travers regain his health. Travers is told that, as Delight was so young at the time of her marriage and had since thought him dead, they must start all over again. In her first encounter with Travers Mary Lou plays her part perfectly. Travers takes new interest in life. Mrs. Lorrimer hopes he will fall in love with Mary Lou. Travers, believing Larry Mitchell, Mary Lou's friend, is in love with her, reminds Mary Lou that she is still his wife.

CHAPTER XXII.

CHRISTMAS at Westwood House that year was to be a great event. It was the first Christmas, since Travers Lorrimer's return from France, that his mother felt she could throw herself wholeheartedly into the festive preparations. She had very much to be thankful for. In the first place, Lorrimer was decidedly better; he had not had one of his nervous seizures since that of the day of Mary Lou's arrival. He continued to eat and to sleep better and was much in the open air. He was beginning to laugh again, to put on weight and to tolerate the presence of other people outside of those of his household.

Tolerate is the exact, most descriptive word, as he did not, as yet, genuinely welcome them. But, as his mother had told him it was not fair to "Delight" to keep her a virtual recluse from her kind, he accepted the occasional visits from outsiders, notably those of Jenny Wynne and her frivolous crowd, and contented himself in thinking that it was for Delight's sake. The mere fact that he had begun to think of the happiness and comfort, the pleasure and welfare of another person besides himself was a very excellent sign that he was becoming more normal, more "human," as Mary Lou expressed it to Dr. Mathews.

Miss Diplomacy

Then, too, Margaret Lorrimer was able to go about more, to see her old friends, to have them, now and then, in her house. And she herself was happy in Mary Lou's companionship, which she found unfailingly friendly, sunny, affectionate and understanding.

Shortly before Christmas Mrs. Lorrimer and Mary Lou permitted themselves several mysterious trips to New York. Lorrimer grumbled, but only half-heartedly. A few months earlier and he would have been overtaken with such a panic of nerves on being left alone that his mother, whatever had been her plans, would have cancelled them, rather than distress him. As it was, the first time they left him for the entire day they found him, on their return, wandering restlessly about, unhappy and fever ridden. He could not seem to shake off the depression which had seized him the instant of their departure, and it took all Mary Lou's diplomatic chatter to win him back at dinner time to something more approaching his recent self. Later Mrs. Lorrimer commented doubtfully upon this reaction and wondered if they should go on with their Christmas plans, which included other trips to town. But Mary Lou suggested that it was wise for him to accustom himself to these perfectly natural absences on their part.

So, more or less ignoring his uneasiness, they went again...and yet again. On one occasion they saw a popular matinee after their shopping, and upon another Mary Lou made a flying trip to Oakdale, armed with many bundles marked, "Do Not Open Until Christmas!"

Invalid by Choice

Billy greeted her with pleasure but some abstraction. He had acquired a passion for his teacher in school and had made a number of intimate friends among his school fellows, including one little girl with curly hair and a way with her. So that Mary Lou was relieved to find that, after all, he did not miss her especially, although he was glad to see her; relieved, and a little hurt, being human. She found Adelaide with six interesting new symptoms and as many new pounds. And Gram as active and bustling and devoted to her entrancingly invalid daughter and lively, healthy grandson as well.

Adelaide demanded chapter and verse of Mary Lou's companions and was terribly disappointed when Mary Lou was unable to report any malignant disease or mania. However, Adelaide insisted that, on her arrival, Mary Lou wash her hands vigorously in some newfangled disinfectant which was the invalid's latest adoration, "for," said Adelaide, gloomily, "you can't be sure you haven't brought some infection with you!"

On still another trip to town Larry joined Mary Lou for lunch as Mrs. Lorrimer had a call to pay and a luncheon engagement to keep. And he promised her, over the table at one of their old-time favorite "Wopperies," that he would come out for Christmas Day.

Upon each occasion, if they separated during the day, Mrs. Lorrimer and Mary Lou met at some appointed place and motored back to Westwood together.

Shortly before Christmas Lorrimer wandered into the morning room where Mary Lou was busy with packages, sitting on the floor in a muddle of twine, gilt cord, red ribbon and colorful papers starred with gold and silver. Tags and labels lay strewn all about her and she was having a perfectly glorious time. Mrs. Lorrimer had been watching and helping her, for, like all very nice women, she had never outgrown her childhood thrill at the giving season and had just left the room. Mary Lou looked up from her gay welter and litter and laughed at Lorrimer's expression.

"Well," said Lorrimer, "you have changed, haven't you?"

"Why?" she asked him, experiencing, as always, that strange constriction of the heart which came to her each time he referred to the real Delight and his intimate knowledge of her.

"Why, one of the first things you ever said to me—we were talking about Christmas—was that you thought it was 'a lot of eye-wash,' except for children."

What a really unpleasant girl the genuine Delight must have been, thought Mary Lou, and felt suddenly horrified that Lorrimer could confuse the two of them. It hurt her pride.

"Did I?" Well," she answered, smiling, "I suppose at that age it must have been the fashion to be cynical and all that: I've changed, as you suggested . . . slipped back to second childhood, perhaps. I'm having a perfectly elegant time! And you'll have to get over your cynicism, too, for your mother and I will need you to help trim the tree. And you just can't back out of it; you're exactly the right height!" she added, looking up at him with an impersonal and measuring gaze, "and what's more, you're going to come with me this afternoon and pick out the tree! I suggested we cut it from Westwood, and your mother has consented. Over in the north grove the trees are very thick. I spoke to Henderson about it and he said a little thinning out wouldn't hurt."

Henderson was the head gardener. Lorrimer shrugged his shoulders.

"Just as you say—but it is a lot of nonsense...commercialized as the devil."

Mary Lou sat back on her heels and surveyed him.

"Gosh!" she said, "I'm certainly sorry for you, Travers Lorrimer!" He flushed, shrinking in his oversensitiveness from the least hint of criticism.

"Now why, exactly?" he managed to ask.

"If you don't know," she replied cryptically, "I'm sorrier for you than ever. Your mother has a list of poor families she always gives to every Christmas. Lots of these things go in the baskets;" she indicated near-by dolls, drums, skates, mechanical tops of all kinds. "There'll be food too and fruit and all. This year she is going to take things to town herself and I'm going with her. I think," suggested Mary Lou, smiling up at him, "that you couldn't give her a lovelier gift than to go with her."

"I hate crowds," he muttered, "and misery—"

Think of Others

Her temper was always hot and quick, although as a rule she had it under control. But today she lost it...or mislaid it temporarily. If she hadn't liked him so much she wouldn't have cared to such a degree. But she did care. The dark blue of her eyes was black with disappointment.

"I'm ashamed of you," she told him, unsteadily but clearly. "Why don't you snap out of it, Lorry—and think of other people besides yourself? Think, for instance of your mother and her life with you all these years. Think of the other men who came home from the war, as broken as you and a great deal worse—legless, armless, eyeless, with shattered nerves and devastated bodies . . . men who didn't have a mother like yours to come home to, who didn't come home to every luxury and beauty and comfort, who didn't have anyone or anything. Men out of jobs. Men in hospitals. The real wreckage of the war. . . . Think what you have in comparison to them. You had a miserable time, you were ill, you were depressed. But you haven't even a limp to show for it all, nor a scar. You've a perfectly sound constitution, your health is, and has been, entirely up to you. You have to admit how much better you are since you started living like a normal person. You haven't much excuse any more," cried Mary Lou: "the trouble with you is that you have become ingrown and selfish . . . that's all!"

He winced back as if she had struck him.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 21—(UP)—A plasterer by daytime and a robber by night, according to his confession, Harold Johnson, 28, was dying today with five bullets in his body as the result of a police chase after a robbery last night police said.

Johnson steadfastly refused to name the companion who accompanied him last night and on several other robberies to which police said he confessed.

Johnson and his companion obtained $11.50 from a grocer last night and Johnson was shot and captured a few minutes later when he sought to flee after a radio car which had answered the robbery call forced him to the curb.

STORY OF ORIENTAL JEALOUSLY IS TOLD

RESULTED IN BITTER QUARREL BETWEEN FUJIMURA AND BLONDE COMPANION

New York, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—A story of oriental jealously which resulted in a bitter quarrel between Hisahi Fujimura and his beautiful blonde companion, Mary Reisner, former actress, was unfolded today as investigators visited the liner Belgenland seeking to gain information on the mystery of Fujimura's disappearance from the liner last Friday.

Jan Ribas, a sketch artist, occupied the cabin next to the millionaire Japanese importer on the fatal show boat cruise. The night before Fujimura's disappearance, he told investigators, he was awakened by shouting and screaming in the importer's cabin.

Fujimura, he said, was angry. He berated the girl, ostensibly a governess for the importer's young daughter, for allegedly transferring her affection to a member of her own race. Ribas said he heard the girl scream as if in pain.

Then the following morning, Ribas told J. Edward Lumbard an assistant United States attorney, Fujimura was missing from his cabin.

Ribas had made a sketch aboard of the Japanese importer, a married man whose family resides at Norwalk, Conn. Ribas said he called at the cabin at 7 a. m. the morning the boat docked from its "show boat cruise." Fujimura was gone. He had not been reported seen since.

The story the sketch artist told to the assistant district attorney varied widely from that reported told by the beautiful blonde show girl. She had been quoted as saying she last saw Fujimura at dinner the night before the ship docked.

It was a gay circle in which Fujimura and the show girl moved aboard the vessel, passengers told the investigators. There was poker for high stakes it was said and Fujimura was a regular attendant at their poker games.

Mrs. Reisner moved in the gay dancing and social set, the passengers said. She was popular with the men—of her own race—on the vessel. There was considerable drinking engaged in by Mrs. Reisner and Fujimura but neither was ever seen intoxicated passengers said.

CRIME COST IN THE U. S. OVER BILLION A YEAR

the latter cost is probably more than the former."

The commission's own statement was contained in eight of the 658 pages in the report. It included a unanimous opinion of the commission that recommendations in the reports of investigators should be carried out.

"Crime imposes a tremendous economic burden on the community," the commission said. "The economic drainage which results is most serious. It should not require the importance and necessity, from a purely economic standpoint of dealing adequately with the problem."

The investigators, Simpson and his partner, Goldwaite H. Door of the New York bar, figures the federal cost of criminal justice quite accurately, they said.

Police and marshals, cost $35,923,915; prohibition, $25,644,069; per cent 74.1.

Prosecution agencies cost $1,996,976; prohibition $996,720; per cent 49.9.

Courts cost $6,331,015; prohibition $4,308,004; per cent 68.1.

Penal institutions cost $8,480,530; prohibition $3,842,416; per cent 45.3.

Prohibition and pardon cost $53,764; prohibition $37,339; per cent 69.3.

Total cost $52,786,202; prohibition $34,828,550; per cent 66.

This detailed material could not be obtained for the states, because adequate statistics are not collected. The commission recommended that arrangements be made for the annual collection of such statistics in the future.

MINNESOTA CITIES GIVEN COMPARISON

Washington, Aug. 21—(U.P.)—Minnesota cities have less waste in the administration of criminal justice than exists in most communities the Wickersham commission reported today in connection with the cost of combatting crime in 300 American cities.

Without challenging the cost in any city the commission disclosed that the citizens of Jersey City, N. J., pay the most per capita for criminal justice machinery. The cost cited there was $11.30 a year for each citizen.

The average per capita cost for the 300 cities was $5.47. The lowest rate recorded was Galesburg, Ill, with 92 cents.

The per capita cost was based on the 1930 census.

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan, seeks a position in the home of wealthy Mrs. Lorrimer, when the latter's son, Travers, a shell-shocked war veteran, enters. At sight of Mary Lou he becomes wildly excited, takes her in his arms and calls her "Delight" and "wife." Later, Mrs. Lorrimer explains that Travers has mistaken Mary Lou for Delight Harford, whom he claims he married in England, but of whom no record can be found. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight to help Travers regain his health. Travers is told that, as Delight was so young at the time of her marriage and had since thought him dead, they must start all over again. In her first encounter with Travers Mary Lou plays her part perfectly. Travers takes new interest in life. Mrs. Lorrimer hopes he will fall in love with Mary Lou. Travers, believing Larry Mitchell, Mary Lou's friend, is in love with her, reminds Mary Lou that she is still his wife.

CHAPTER XXII.

CHRISTMAS at Westwood House that year was to be a great event. It was the first Christmas, since Travers Lorrimer's return from France, that his mother felt she could throw herself wholeheartedly into the festive preparations. She had very much to be thankful for. In the first place, Lorrimer was decidedly better; he had not had one of his nervous seizures since that of the day of Mary Lou's arrival. He continued to eat and to sleep better and was much in the open air. He was beginning to laugh again, to put on weight and to tolerate the presence of other people outside of those of his household.

Tolerate is the exact, most descriptive word, as he did not, as yet, genuinely welcome them. But, as his mother had told him it was not fair to "Delight" to keep her a virtual recluse from her kind, he accepted the occasional visits from outsiders, notably those of Jenny Wynne and her frivolous crowd, and contented himself in thinking that it was for Delight's sake. The mere fact that he had begun to think of the happiness and comfort, the pleasure and welfare of another person besides himself was a very excellent sign that he was becoming more normal, more "human," as Mary Lou expressed it to Dr. Mathews.

Miss Diplomacy

Then, too, Margaret Lorrimer was able to go about more, to see her old friends, to have them, now and then, in her house. And she herself was happy in Mary Lou's companionship, which she found unfailingly friendly, sunny, affectionate and understanding.

Shortly before Christmas Mrs. Lorrimer and Mary Lou permitted themselves several mysterious trips to New York. Lorrimer grumbled, but only half-heartedly. A few months earlier and he would have been overtaken with such a panic of nerves on being left alone that his mother, whatever had been her plans, would have cancelled them, rather than distress him. As it was, the first time they left him for the entire day they found him, on their return, wandering restlessly about, unhappy and fever ridden. He could not seem to shake off the depression which had seized him the instant of their departure, and it took all Mary Lou's diplomatic chatter to win him back at dinner time to something more approaching his recent self. Later Mrs. Lorrimer commented doubtfully upon this reaction and wondered if they should go on with their Christmas plans, which included other trips to town. But Mary Lou suggested that it was wise for him to accustom himself to these perfectly natural absences on their part.

So, more or less ignoring his uneasiness, they went again...and yet again. On one occasion they saw a popular matinee after their shopping, and upon another Mary Lou made a flying trip to Oakdale, armed with many bundles marked, "Do Not Open Until Christmas!"

Invalid by Choice

Billy greeted her with pleasure but some abstraction. He had acquired a passion for his teacher in school and had made a number of intimate friends among his school fellows, including one little girl with curly hair and a way with her. So that Mary Lou was relieved to find that, after all, he did not miss her especially, although he was glad to see her; relieved, and a little hurt, being human. She found Adelaide with six interesting new symptoms and as many new pounds. And Gram as active and bustling and devoted to her entrancingly invalid daughter and lively, healthy grandson as well.

Adelaide demanded chapter and verse of Mary Lou's companions and was terribly disappointed when Mary Lou was unable to report any malignant disease or mania. However, Adelaide insisted that, on her arrival, Mary Lou wash her hands vigorously in some new-fangled disinfectant which was the invalid's latest adoration, "for," said Adelaide, gloomily, "you can't be sure you haven't brought some infection with you!"

On still another trip to town Larry joined Mary Lou for lunch as Mrs. Lorrimer had a call to pay and a luncheon engagement to keep. And he promised her, over the table at one of their old-time favorite "Wopperies," that he would come out for Christmas Day.

Upon each occasion, if they separated during the day, Mrs. Lorrimer and Mary Lou met at some appointed place and motored back to Westwood together.

Shortly before Christmas Lorrimer wandered into the morning room where Mary Lou was busy with packages, sitting on the floor in a muddle of twine, gilt cord, red ribbon and colorful papers starred with gold and silver. Tags and labels lay strewn all about her and she was having a perfectly glorious time. Mrs. Lorrimer had been watching and helping her, for, like all very nice women, she had never outgrown her childhood thrill at the giving season and had just left the room. Mary Lou looked up from her gay welter and litter and laughed at Lorrimer's expression.

"Well," said Lorrimer, "you have changed, haven't you?"

"Why?" she asked him, experiencing, as always, that strange constriction of the heart which came to her each time he referred to the real Delight and his intimate knowledge of her.

"Why, one of the first things you ever said to me—we were talking about Christmas—was that you thought it was 'a lot of eye-wash,' except for children."

What a really unpleasant girl the genuine Delight must have been, thought Mary Lou, and felt suddenly horrified that Lorrimer could confuse the two of them. It hurt her pride.

"Did I? Well," she answered, smiling, "I suppose at that age it must have been the fashion to be cynical and all that: I've changed, as you suggested . . . slipped back to second childhood, perhaps. I'm having a perfectly elegant time! And you'll have to get over your cynicism, too, for your mother and I will need you to help trim the tree. And you just can't back out of it; you're exactly the right height!" she added, looking up at him with an impersonal and measuring gaze, "and what's more, you're going to come with me this afternoon and pick out the tree! I suggested we cut it from Westwood, and your mother has consented. Over in the north grove the trees are very thick. I spoke to Henderson about it and he said a little thinning out wouldn't hurt."

Henderson was the head gardener. Lorrimer shrugged his shoulders.

"Just as you say—but it is a lot of nonsense...commercialized as the devil."

Mary Lou sat back on her heels and surveyed him.

"Gosh!" she said, "I'm certainly sorry for you, Travers Lorrimer!" He flushed, shrinking in his oversensitiveness from the least hint of criticism.

"Now why, exactly?" he managed to ask.

"If you don't know," she replied cryptically, "I'm sorrier for you than ever. Your mother has a list of poor families she always gives to every Christmas. Lots of these things go in the baskets;" she indicated near-by dolls, drums, skates, mechanical tops of all kinds. "There'll be food too and fruit and all. This year she is going to take things to town herself and I'm going with her. I think," suggested Mary Lou, smiling up at him, "that you couldn't give her a ovelier gift than to go with her."

"I hate crowds," he muttered, "and misery—"

Think of Others

Her temper was always hot and quick, although as a rule she had it under control. But today she lost it...or mislaid it temporarily. If she hadn't liked him so much she wouldn't have cared to such a degree. But she did care. The dark blue of her eyes was black with disappointment.

"I'm ashamed of you," she told him, unsteadily but clearly. "Why don't you snap out of it, Lorry—and think of other people besides yourself? Think, for instance of your mother and her life with you all these years. Think of the other men who came home from the war, as broken as you and a great deal worse—legless, armless, eyeless, with shattered nerves and devastated bodies . . . men who didn't have a mother like yours to come home to, who didn't come home to every luxury and beauty and comfort, who didn't have anyone or anything. Men out of jobs. Men in hospitals. The real wreckage of the war. . . . Think what you have in comparison to them. You had a miserable time, you were ill, you were depressed. But you haven't even a limp to show for it all, nor a scar. You've a perfectly sound constitution, your health is, and has been, entirely up to you. You have to admit how much better you are since you started living like a normal person. You haven't much excuse any more," cried Mary Lou: "the trouble with you is that you have become ingrown and selfish . . . that's all!"

He winced back as if she had struck him.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 21—(U.P.)—A plasterer by daytime and a robber by night, according to his confession, Harold Johnson, 28, was dying today with five bullets in his body as the result of a police chase after a robbery last night police said.

Johnson steadfastly refused to name the companion who accompanied him last night and on several other robberies to which police said he confessed.

Johnson and his companion obtained $11.50 from a grocer last night and Johnson was shot and captured a few minutes later when he sought to flee after a radio car which had answered the robbery call forced him to the curb.
